

Phonics

Hunt around your house and garden trying to find things that have the sound oo / a-e

moon space

Write them down as you go along. Choose some to write sentences with or draw a picture instead.

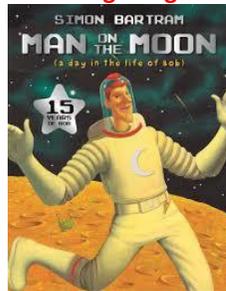

You may decide to make up some silly sentences.

(choose different sounds or letters that you know if you wish)

Speaking and Listening

(Work with an adult/older sibling using the guide)

Explore the spread from the book above. Who is this? How would you describe his character? What kind of person do you think he is? Would you like to meet him? Where is he? What do you think he enjoys? What does he do for a job? How would you describe his home? What does his home tell you

What does your home tell people about you?

Questions and Speech Bubbles

What questions would you like to ask an astronaut?

Write them out remembering to use question words and question marks.

Find out some of the answers.

You could practise last week's work on speech bubbles too. Draw you asking a question in a speech bubble and an astronaut answering you back.

Spelling

Select some words to spell from the list here.

<https://www.highfrequencywords.org/hfw100fp.pdf>

Use the strategy:

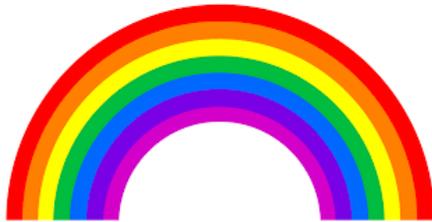

Look Copy Cover Write Check

*Invent some space writing

*Rainbow Words

*Make your words from cut out letters in magazines/newspapers

You could use the words from the phonics section instead or as well!

Illustrate It

Look at Bob in his home again. Think about the objects that are special to him, his photographs pictures, souvenirs, trophies, and soft furnishings. What would the rest of this room look like? What about the rest of the house? Draw what you imagine or choose a special object that you think he would like.

OR

Create your own Mission Patch for Bob after watching the links in the guide.
